SYNDICATED FEATURES SYNDICATE

You know about the Ohio Gay Resources Exchange marches for Gay Pride Week?
There are a bunch, Sid. But most people are afraid of being seen.
STONEWALL FEATURES SYNDICATE
So the whole project will fizzle, eh?
Oh, no, we'll have a great turnout—
The Cincinnati people are marching in Cleveland, Cleveland will march here, Columbus goes to Cincinnati, and we march on the State House in Columbus!
18
Murf, after all the excitement and activity of Gay Pride Week, I've decided to get involved.
Doing what?
I'm working on the Ohio Gay Resources Exchange newsletter.. on the Site Selection Committee for the Gay Community Center...
I'm on the Gay Hotline phone, and I start Peer Counseling classes next week...
Next Sunday I'll be in the bike-a-thon for the Gay Library, and this afternoon I'm making baklava for the bake sale.
STONEWALL FEATURES SYNDICATE
Know of any other gay causes I can volunteer for?
Sounds like you're ripe to become a burnout.
Great! How do I sign up?
29
Oui, c'est elle, C'est la cheese plus charmante et plus belle!
My god! What's that?
It's Jeff. Sounds like he's in agony!
What are you doing, Jeff?
Sid says you can't be gay unless you like opera. So I'm learning Wagner.
that's Wagner!?
He says that we have a stereotype to live up to...
...And anyway...
STONEWALL FEATURES SYNDICATE
...It's only fair that if he has to put up with Disco every time he goes into a bar, then I should learn to stay awake through an opera!

Great news, Murf — Trés Jollies is having a costume contest
STONEWALL FEATURES SYNDICATE
-Only- I can't decide whether to go macho or in drag.
I think maybe I'll do Shirley Temple in Little Miss Marker..
Golly, Mr. Sorrowful..
If that's not drag, I don't know what is!
Then, R-R-RIP!!- the gingham skirt splits open, and suddenly I'm the Hulk!

I was the first guy in town to get the new hepitits vaccine.
Y'know, it makes me appreciate how lucky I am I never caught anything.

This disco is so big and crowded and noisy. I'd never come here alone!
Lots of people feel that way. So they come in groups, for protection — to have someone to talk to...

...and those groups don't mix with outsiders.
So how do you tell who's in a group and who isn't?
Sometimes it's easy."
WE'RE TOGETHER - DON'T BOTHER US.
Low lights, soft music — the best restaurant in town — a perfect first date, Clem!
I suppose your next line is that you're madly in love with me.
49
What! I... How did you —?
You've been staring at me all night as if I were a porn film.
So go ahead and tell me how much you love me.
To the depths of the stars, as high as the mountains, as clear as the lakes, as green as the forests!
That's how much I love you!
Good. In that case, you pay the check.
STONEHILL FEATURES SYNDICATE
But I love you desperately, Clem— don't be heartless, don't be cruel!
Oh, get up, will you?
STONEHILL FEATURES SYNDICATE
48
Can't you see that we were made for each other? Without you, I'll wither up and die!

Notes from the Editor

When Denis Kitchen asked me in 1980 if I'd edit an underground comic to be called Gay Comix, I quivered a bit, asked my lover Eddie if he thought it would ruin my career, but ultimately decided to do it. Neither of us had any idea if we'd have a chance of breaking even on the project, but it seemed like a worthy thing to tackle.

The first issue heartened both of us. Artists of whom I had never heard sent me intriguing, sometimes excellent, material. Artists I already knew to be gay or bisexual responded enthusiastically. In a case or two, a colleague's revelation of gayness caught me by surprise. The gay and comic-fan press took an immediate interest and Gay Comix sold well. The positive reaction provoked us to think of Gay Comix not as a one-shot publication but as a potential series.

So we published a second issue, then a third, and now here's the fourth. And at this point it's time for me to bow to some needs of my own and withdraw as editor. I hope that the momentum we've established will help the series to continue as an exciting, thematically free and thought-provoking forum for lesbian and gay male cartoonists in years to come. Denis Kitchen will shortly announce his plans for filling my editorial slot.

You haven't seen the last of me, though; I still intend to draw for Gay Comix. And I hope that all the artists who've worked with me will give the new editor or editors the same energy and support that I've enjoyed.

And now for some business at hand...

One of the pleasures of editing this series has always been introducing you to the artists who are new to its pages.

Jim Yost is an emerging commercial artist from Brooklyn. Although his pen-and-ink skill speaks for itself in this issue's "Billie" and "Scrapbook," Jim says he devotes most of his creative time to acrylic illustration.

Rick Campbell ("Walls") works as a "gofer" at a Houston oil firm while pursuing a master's degree in computer science at the University of Houston. The native Texan has had little time for cartooning recently, but alert readers may have caught his work in fanzines a few years back.

Jerry Mills is a staffer at In Touch for Men, where "Poppers" is a regular feature. He has also done freelance illustration for Chic, Oui, and Blueboy. This issue's "Poppers" is reprinted as a treat for all of you old Katy Keene freaks at the leather bars.

Mother Goddess in peak form.

Jackie Urbanovic of Minneapolis illustrates children's books and collaborates with writer Susie Day on Mother Goddess Funnies, a self-syndicated comic strip familiar to readers of many women's publications. (And if the editors of more male-oriented publications think this very funny strip is only for women, then it's the guys' loss!) To learn more about picking up Mother Goddess for your publication, write to Jackie at 2207 21st Avenue South, Minneapolis, MN 55404.

The writer of "A Word from Our Sponsor," Jackie's contribution to this book, calls herself Bird. Jackie supplies us with the following bio: "Bird is a staff member of the Poughkeepsie Institute for the Study of Advanced Human Behavior, specializing in music, medicine, martial arts and cynical behavior."

Roberta Gregory's Dynamite Damsels can still be ordered for $1.35 from the artist at P.O. Box 3335, Van Nuys, CA 91407. And those of you who (like me) are suffering from Mary Wings Deprivation should know that Last Gasp now carries all three of Mary's solo books (Come Out Comix, Dyke Shorts, and Are Your Highs Getting You Down?).

Write for price info: Last Gasp's address is 2180 Bryant, San Francisco, CA 94110.

The Murphy's Manor strips by Kurt Erichsen are selections from Kurt's weekly comic strip of the same name, which is syndicated by Stonewall Features, P.O. Box 222976, Carmel, CA 93922. Write Stonewall for details about securing Murphy's Manor for your paper. Kurt's been drawing this snappy strip for more than a year now.

Thanks to Vaughn for our cover art this issue.

Howard Cruse, Editor

Letters •• FEEDBACK FROM READERS, BOTH GAY AND NONGAY

From Tony Crewes, Sydney, Australia:

Bought Gay Comix at a local bookshop yesterday and felt I had to write and say how great it was.

I'm an underground comix collector, a rare animal in this country, and love Griffith, Noonin, Deitch, Crumb, and nearly all comix by women. Tell those wonderful women that they're, well, wonderful!

Relations between lesbians and gay men in this country are "difficult," but these comix make one believe there might be close similarities in experience—something I forget, living in a gay male world.

From Kalervo Pulkkinen, Helsinki, Finland:

Gay Comix #2 was very entertaining. I loved the Snow Queen story and artwork, as well as your story about Jerry Mack. It is almost unbelievable to notice how a comic book story really can touch and deal with human complexities.

From Michael T. Gilbert, Kent, OH:

Lee Marrs's piece was clever and well done. Very entertaining. But somehow I wish she'd open up and take greater personal risks. I'd like to see her do a Harvey Pekar style "slice of life" story—either about herself or someone she knows intimately. Lee is one of the handful of people in this business who have the art and writing ability to pull that off well. I wish she'd take a crack at it.

"One for Sorrow" was effective—but came dangerously close to self-indulgence and, worse, self-pity. "I Always Cry at Movies" was a gem—my favorite of the book. The juxtaposition of dialogue and images was very honest and inventive.

"Necropolitan Life"—very strong graphically but has nothing at all to do with the book's theme and should never have been accepted.

"Another Coming Out Story"—far and away the best I've ever seen from Roberta Gregory. Usually her characters look and act as if they're just waiting to be stepped on, with these wimpy "pity me" facial expressions. This time we had a well-rounded story about real well-rounded people. And it was nice that alcoholism was the focus of this story, with her protagonist's sexual orientation a secondary consideration, rather than vice versa.

"Dirty Old Lovers"—very unusual, very enjoyable—unpredictable in spots (such as when they succeed in picking the kid up at the bar). A couple of spots bothered me a little, as it seemed you were too concerned about "covering your ass" image-wise rather than ignoring public opinion and just telling a story and the public be damned (i.e., "Thank God most gays aren't like them!" and the ending). But I realize the delicate position you're in, and it takes a certain amount of guts to even tackle a negative-image gay story. And on the whole I did enjoy it quite a bit, so...well done!

The rest of the book lacked polish. Why don't you make a greater effort to mix artists and writers in the future? Why not get someone like Fugate to illustrate some of the lesser cartoonists in the book? Might work out well.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Thanks for the candid critique by the writer and artist of Strange Brew, published by Aardvark-Vanaheim, and co-artist (with P. Craig Russell) for Pacific's Elric.

Obviously I disagree with Mike about Fugate's "Necropolitan Life" or I wouldn't have published it. When gays draw stories about their emotional lives as distinct from their politics or lifestyles, the universality of human feelings may cause the identifiably gay component to be less obvious.

Mike's other opinions will be seconded by some readers and vehemently disputed by others. I can't think of an artist who has appeared in Gay Comix whose work has not been cited favorably by some reader who has written to me. All the artists tell me they like feedback, even when it's (gulp) negative. So keep those cards and letters coming!

Meanwhile, Luke Tewba and Clark Stobber would never forgive me if I let anyone think that I see them as negative images. If the irony in my narrative boxes failed to register, I guess I'll have to tune up my Rapidograph.)

From Raymond A. deTurenne, Los Angeles, CA:

Gentlemen and ladies—Bravo! I first read Gay Comix #1 after I had just come out of the closet and was desperately reaching for support from any source. I was reading all of the fancy-dancy books like The Homosexual Matrix that documented my "normalcy" and all the romance books like Merrick's Peter & Charlie series. But all of this was no help to a very confused 19-year-old who was looking for something to relate to on his own age level. (Oh, if only Reflections of a Rock Lobster had come out then!)

Then I ran across Gay Comix #1. Alright, so it isn't as impressive on the coffee table as The Homosexual Matrix, but it was a veritable bible to me.

I've been out of the country for a while, but when I returned, I found out you've put out two more! Far fucking out! Please send me a copy of Gay Comix #1, #2 and #3. And put me on some kind of mailing list that lets me know when you put out a fourth one.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: We can't afford the cost of sending out announcements to individuals, Raymond. But we try to let both the national and local gay media know when we publish each new issue. With encouragement from individual readers, maybe more of them will review us. Meanwhile, ask for us at your nearest gay bookstores and comic book shops. Your support can help make Gay Comix more available.)

From Gail Atkins, San Francisco, CA:

I have just finished reading Gay Comix #3 and decided it's time to write and thank you for all of the issues. Gay Comix is everything I look for in comix—intelligent, funny, politically responsible and with a wide range of excellent artists. All this and gay, too!

To specifically mention favorites: in GC#1—"Stick in the Mud" by Lee Marrs, "Billy Goes Out" by Himself, and the page by Demian; in GC#2—"Jerry Mack" by Himself again, and "Unnatural Desires" by Roberta Gregory; and in GC#3—"My Deadly Darling Dyke" by Lee Marrs in top gothic form, "The Tale of Cha-Lee and Sat-Yah" by Demian, and "Dirty Old Lovers" by Himself again.

Another general comment or two: the front covers are all excellent and stand out as quality on the UG shelves; and thank you for keeping a balance between male and female.

(HIMSELF'S NOTE: Gail observes correctly that Gay Comix has sought to be a showcase for both lesbian and gay male cartoonists. We need more submissions by you talented women out there if we're going to keep the balance intact. Don't be shy; after all, the personal style of comic book storytelling in Gay Comix was pioneered by the women who put together Wimmen's Comix when underground comix were young.)

From Bill Fishman, Los Angeles, CA:

Thanks for Gay Comix #3. My favorite piece was D. Kottler's ["I'm Me!"] because it told me something. Besides, Dave and his husband look so cute.

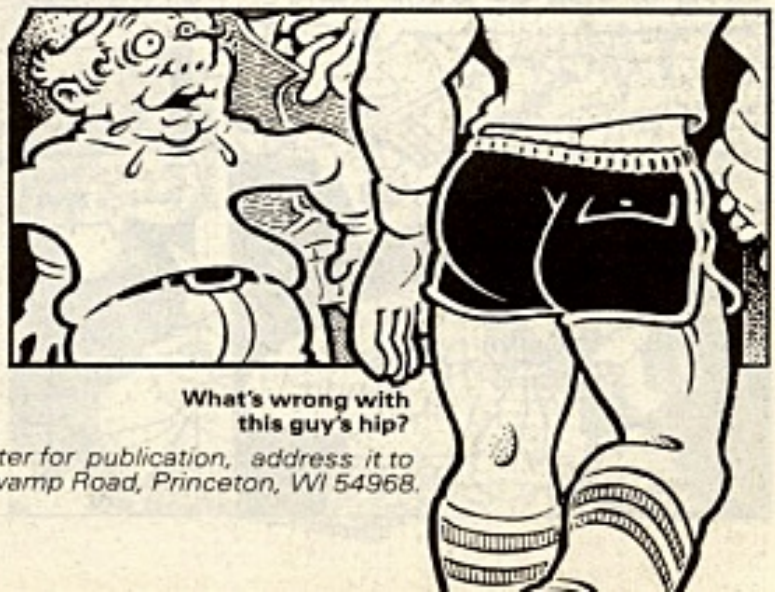
By the way, in the third panel on the second page of "Dirty Old Lovers," what's wrong with this guy's hip?



What's wrong with this guy's hip?

We welcome feedback from readers. If you'd like to offer a letter for publication, address it to Gay Comix Letters Page, Kitchen Sink Comix, Number Two Swamp Road, Princeton, WI 54968.

I AM THE ESSENCE OF GAY SENSIBILITY. MY ANDROGYNY IS COMPLETE.
Beauty is spiritual, not sexual.
